

Position Title	Carroll Reads Tutor
Number of Open Positions	10
Department Name	Center for Service and Social Action
Position Description	America Reads is a national grassroots tutoring program with the goal of promoting literacy. America Reads was founded in 1997 and though the program is now archived, there are still active America Reads chapters throughout the country with new ones being formed on a regular basis. John Carroll is currently in the process of expanding Carroll Reads, our America Reads program, and is looking for approximately 25 tutors to commit to tutoring students grades K-3 in Fall 2016. Tutors in Carroll Reads will be working with children in grades K-2 in early reading skills. They will be utilizing the STEP program and will need to be trained in this method. At the schools, children are pulled out of class to work one-on-one with tutors. We are looking for tutors who truly want to work with children and learn from this experience. You must be able to exhibit patience and a variety of methods to be able to teach young students. It is also necessary that tutors will be able to commit to tutoring twice per week in this program.
Days and Times Needed	Carroll Reads tutors sign up for twice a week tutoring sessions that fit their schedule. Times and days will be on the application that tutors must fill out to be considered.
