A Woman for Others

Linda Seiter of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science wins the 2013 Curtis W. Miles Faculty Award for Service

The Curtis W. Miles Award recognizes faculty members who share their expertise with community groups and nonprofit agencies and make a significant contribution to the broader Cleveland community consistent with the University's mission and goals. The Faculty Committee on Research, Service, and Faculty Development solicit nominations from JCU faculty, staff, administrators, and students and recommends candidates with support from the Center for Service and Social Action. The award is presented during John Carroll University's Ignatian Heritage Week in recognition of the role of service in the University's mission.

Working with US Together, a local refugee resettlement organization, Linda Seiter's students taught refugees how to build an Access database, which is a marketable skill. Her students have built websites for community partners who couldn't afford to hire someone to do it. The Montefiore Senior Center, Light of Hearts Villa, the Thea Bowman Center, Fatima Family Center, Esperanza, Open Doors, and so many more have benefitted from Seiter's commitment to engaging students in service through their coursework.

Saul Soriano '11 wrote about his experience in Seiter’s courses: “She is unwavering in her support of her students; she is faithfully committed ... the perfect candidate for this award ... In the beginning of the semester, I did not have the zeal for community service in this field. Dr. Seiter constantly talked about the importance of the service experience for our benefit and those who can be inspired by what we do.”

Not only does Seiter engage her students in the community, her actions follow her words. Throughout the past several years, Seiter has generously given her time to offer workshops for:

- The Cleveland Chapter of Black Data Processing Associates
- High school teachers
- School children
- Teens
- Summer campers at University Settlement in Slavic Village
- Summer campers at John Carroll
- Refugees being resettled in Cleveland

GRANT SUPPORTS COURSE DEVELOPMENT IN ENTREPRENEURSHIP

John Carroll received a $42,350 grant from the Burton D. Morgan foundation to develop units on entrepreneurship/creativity into existing arts and science courses. This approach adds another dimension of entrepreneurial thinking on the campus and complements the strong, interdisciplinary entrepreneurship minor and co-curriculars sponsored by the Muldoon Center. This year, the John Carroll entrepreneurship program was ranked 18th nationally and 1st in Ohio for best undergraduate entrepreneurship program by the Bloomberg Businessweek.

The following faculty members were selected as Burton D. Morgan CAS Entrepreneurship Fellows:

- Denise Ben-Porath (Psychology)
- Jennifer Catellier (Communications and Theatre Arts)
- Doris Donnelly (Theology and Religious Studies)
- Duane Dukes (Sociology and Criminology)
- Penny Harris (Sociology and Criminology)
- Sharon Kaye (Philosophy)
- Malia McAndrews (History)
- Naveed Piracha (Physics)
- Sara Stashower (Communications and Theatre Arts)
- Elizabeth Stiles (Political Science)

Five of the faculty will be teaching their unit about entrepreneurship this spring, and five will teach this fall.

As part of the grant, the CAS Burton Fellows and other interested faculty participated in a workshop Jan. 19, 2013, about developing entrepreneurship/creativity in the liberal arts conducted by two national leaders in entrepreneurship education – Dr. Michael Morris, the N. Malone

Mitchell Chair in Entrepreneurship and Head of the School of Entrepreneurship at Oklahoma State University, and Dr. Elizabeth Goldberg, Professor of English and Mandell Family Term Chair at Babson College.

- Jacqueline Schmidt, Project Manager and Interim Director of the entrepreneurship minor

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE GRAUEL FACULTY FELLOWSHIP RECIPIENTS FOR 2013-2014

This Fellowship is available to support faculty research for one semester at full salary or one year at half salary. Proposals should be primarily research oriented and result in a publication, or should involve other types of faculty development, such as writing textbooks, curriculum development, or academic service-oriented activities.

Scott Allen
Department of Management, Marketing, and Logistics (on leave Spring 2014) will accelerate the development of an empirically testable model of leadership development, which is an emerging field of research and study.

Santa Casciani
Department of Classical and Modern Languages and Cultures (on leave Spring 2014) will finish and proof two major articles, “The Darkness of Silence: Bonaventure and Dante,” and “The Tears of Love: Dante and the Franciscans.”

Medora Barnes
Department of Sociology and Criminology (on leave Fall 2013) will organize, transcribe, and analyze qualitative data from a study that uses in-depth interviews to explore the ways parents who conceived their children using an anonymous sperm donor construct a sense of family. The study examines family relationships on various levels.

Michael Eng
Department of Philosophy (on leave Spring 2014) will complete the final chapter of a book-length manuscript “The Scene of the Voice: Language and the Aisthesis of Finitude.”

Carrie Buchanan
Department of Communication and Theatre Arts (on leave Fall 2013) will examine how three hyperlocal publications that serve Cleveland’s Heights communities build a sense of place and how they compare to one another in that regard.

Jeff Johansen
Department of Biology (on leave Spring 2014) will study cyanobacterial strains isolated from tropical regions, with emphasis on collections from the Hawaiian Islands.

Erin Johnson
Department of Biology (on leave Spring 2014) will use small organic compounds to enhance the mammalian immune response to viral infections.

David Mascotti
Department of Chemistry (on leave Fall 2013) will explore further the molecular basis of how an enzyme that is known to protect all living things from free radical damage binds to, and perhaps, protects preferred regions of our DNA and RNA.

Naveed Piracha
Department of Physics (on leave Fall 2013) will study atoms and their characteristics using lasers.

Catherine Rosemary
Department of Education and Allied Studies (on leave Spring 2014) will develop further two studies focusing on: (a) theoretical bases and components of instructional coaching programs; (b) inquiry processes used by coaches to scaffold teachers' decision-making about effective instructional practices; and (c) contextual and individual factors that influence instructional coaching.

Linda Seiter
Department of Mathematics and Computer Science (on leave Spring 2014) will produce a framework for studying and assessing the development of computational thinking in grades K-8.

Yi Shang
Department of Education and Allied Studies (on leave Fall 2013) will develop a study to counteract the measurement-error-induced bias of growth models and improve the validity of teacher and school evaluations.

Peifang Tian
Department of Physics (on leave Fall 2013 and Spring 2014) will theoretically model light propagation in a complex medium, such as the living cortex using Monte Carlo simulation, which allows more accurate interpretation of optical imaging studies.
