A Model Professor

Dr. Carl Anthony, Department of Biology, is the winner of the 2014 Lucrezia Culicchia Award for Teaching Excellence in the College of Arts and Sciences.

In remarks at the College of Arts and Science meeting where Dr. Carl Anthony was presented with the award, colleagues Mindy Peden, Chris Sheil, and Jeff Johansen cited his signature teaching approach – using the advocate/disputant model in his courses to provoke outstanding discussions and demonstrate the importance of critique when developing scientific ideas and grappling with the primary literature. As letters from his students also attest, Dr. Anthony is praised consistently for his inquiry-based learning approach and the success of that method for preparing students for graduate school and addressing environmental issues. For example, one student explained that Dr. Anthony tied basic ecological concepts to broad conservational issues, including instances in which they directly impacted local Ohio conservation problems. He made sure students realized understanding ecological processes and mechanisms for evolution can help them understand and solve real-world problems.

Dr. Anthony earned his Ph.D. in Environmental and Evolutionary Biology from the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. He uses predatory invertebrates, amphibians, and reptiles as model systems to research kin selection, competition, and food web dynamics. With his colleagues Chris Sheil and Ralph Saporito, Dr. Anthony formed a “Herp group” for undergraduates and graduates to discuss recent work in herpetology. Dr. Anthony has produced more than 35 publications, many with former JCU students. As a one of his students put it, “Dr. Anthony has not only played an integral role in my understanding of the teacher-scholar model of education, but he has lived that framework as a professor at John Carroll.”

JOSEPH CONSIGLIO
Visiting Assistant Professor
Department of Mathematics and Computer Science
Dr. Consiglio received his Ph.D. in Biostatistics from the State University of New York at Buffalo, where he helped with statistics courses for students in the School of Public Health and Health Professions. Dr. Consiglio has provided statistical consulting and support for a number of medical projects, including evaluating treatment-related adverse events in chronic kidney disease patients, oncology at the Roswell Park Cancer Institute in Buffalo, and emergency medicine at the Erie County (Pa.) Medical Center.

JALEH FAZELIAN
Head of Research, Learning, and Information Services
Grasselli Library and Breen Learning Center
Before arriving at John Carroll, Ms. Fazelian was the Islamic Studies and South Asian Studies Librarian at Washington University in St. Louis, where, in addition to her work in bibliographic instruction and cataloging, she was involved in special projects, events planning, and training with regard to digitizing and the digital humanities, social media, and diversity. Ms. Fazelian holds an M.L.S. from Indiana University and an M.A. in Historical Studies from Southern Illinois University Edwardsville.

MARCUS GALLO
Assistant Professor
Department of History
Dr. Gallo taught a variety of early American and world history courses at Shippensburg University in Pennsylvania and will develop his interest in borderlands history for new courses at John Carroll. Dr. Gallo’s Ph.D. is from the University of California, Davis, and his research interests lie in situating early American property distribution within the broader context of Atlantic history, focusing, in particular, on the surveyors of the Susquehanna and Ohio Valleys of Pennsylvania.

LTC MATTHEW JOHNSON
Professor
Department of Military Science
Lieutenant Colonel John Johnson graduated from the United States Military Academy and was commissioned as a field artillery officer. Serving in Germany and deployed to Iraq, LTC Johnson has taught ROTC at Creighton University, where he also received his M.A. in international relations.

CHRISTOPHER LIN
Visiting Assistant Professor
Mathematics and Computer Science
Dr. Lin’s teaching experience comes from his position as a lecturer in Mathematics at Case Western Reserve University, where he was nominated for the Carl F. Wittle undergraduate teaching award last year. With a Ph.D. in Mathematics from the University of California, Irvine, Dr. Lin taught at Tulane University while he was there as a VIGRE postdoctoral fellow. With research interests in differential geometry, most recently the relation of geometric flows to ideas in statistical mechanics, Dr. Lin has published in the Journal of Geometry and Physics, The Journal of Mathematical Physics, and the Journal of Functional Analysis. At John Carroll, he teaches applied calculus, differential equations and dynamical systems, and calculus and analytic geometry.

MAURITA MOORE
Visiting Instructor
Department of Counseling
In addition to an M.A. in counseling from John Carroll, Ms. Moore brings with her a wealth of experience in the area of treating chemical dependency as owner-operator of six treatment centers, president of Moore Counseling and Mediation Services, and previously, as director of inpatient units at Laurelwood Hospital and Counseling Centers. Ms. Moore has already taught part time for John Carroll. She will embark on program development and teaching courses about addiction and treatment knowledge; group procedures; diversity issues in counseling; and with Dr. Cecile Brennan, Holiness and Wholeness for the Spiritual Wellness Certificate.
