How to cite a book Chapter…

in an edited volume

At times several scholars work together to write a book. These works are called edited volumes, each author writing one chapter of the book. Such books also have an editor who, reviews all of the chapters for consistency and narrative flow. Here is an example of how to cite a specific chapter in an edited volume.

1. Author of chapter
2. Title of chapter
3. Title of book
4. Editor of book
5. City of Publication
6. Publisher
7. Year of Publication
8. Page number(s) cited

Sample student Endnotes

Research papers for history classes should include either footnotes or endnotes. Notes should point readers to the specific page of a citation that is referenced in the body of your paper. Your notes should be single spaced with a double space in between them. As opposed to in the bibliography, the authors names are not inverted in the notes. After a title is cited once, the author’s last name and a shortened title can refer to a note by the same author. In the case that a work is cited twice in a row the abbreviation “ibid” (in the same place as above) may be used.
